No two ways about it: life after divorce can be tough, but it doesn't have to be the worst. A lot depends on your perspective, and how you adapt to your new situation. You can make it a life transition that's difficult but ultimately rewarding, or it can be the most miserable period of your life, resulting in your making everyone you love uncomfortable and leaving emotional scars that never heal.

P.S.: I'm not sure what happened in your life than led you to want to make snarky remarks in response to someone sharing about the death of a loved one, and hoping people get help for a disease that not only impacts them but those that love them. It seems to me that it must have been really traumatic or difficult to make you want to do that.

Adult taste buds, in general, turn over within eight to 12 days. Taste buds are clusters of polarized sensory cells embedded in the tongue, and the ones that are closer to the surface have a shorter lifespan. That's why, when you burn your tongue, it doesn't take too long until you're able to taste again.
